

It is imperative that satellite radio be afforded a complete range of stations, including local traffic and weather. For those of us who drive long distances, this is an invaluable service which is entirely within all current broadcasting guidelines.